43 Defendant.

INTRODUCTION

2 The May Plaintiffs’ purported expert, Clayton Cramer, filed a 51-page
3 declaration in response to the testimony of Defendant’s experts. Many of the 4 substantive deficiencies in that declaration are addressed in Defendant’s sur-rebuttal
5 declarations. See May Dkt. Nos. 32-38; Carralero Dkt. Nos. 31-37. The objections
6 below are focused solely on Mr. Cramer’s legal conclusions about how to interpret
7 New York State Rifle & Pistol Ass’n, Inc. v. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. 2111 (2022).
8 Because such testimony is plainly inadmissible, it should be disregarded and
9 stricken from the record. See U.S. v. Tamman, 782 F.3d 543, 552 (9th Cir. 2015)
10 (stating that an expert “cannot testify to a matter of law amounting to a legal 11 conclusion”).

LEGAL STANDARD

13       Federal Rule of Evidence 702 permits expert testimony only from a witness 14       who is “qualified as an expert by knowledge, skill, experience, training, or 15       education.” General qualifications as an expert are not sufficient, however. Rather,
16       an expert witness must be qualified in the specific subject for which his testimony
17       is offered. See Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharms., Inc., 509 U.S. 579, 590-91
18       (1993). Rule 702 also “places limits on the areas of expertise and the 19       methodologies of analysis which may be covered and used by an expert witness.”
20       DSU Med. Corp. v. JMS Co., Ltd., 296 F. Supp. 2d 1140, 1146 (N.D. Cal. 2003).
21       While expert testimony is not necessarily “objectionable because it embraces an 22       ultimate issue,” Fed. R. Evid. 704, this exception does not extend to testimony on 23       an ultimate issue of law. See United States v. Diaz, 876 F.3d 1194, 1196-97 (9th
24       Cir. 2017) (“Consistent with Rule 704(a), this court has repeatedly affirmed that an 25       expert witness cannot give an opinion as to her legal conclusion, i.e., an opinion on 26       an ultimate issue of law.”) (internal quotations and citations omitted).

ARGUMENT

Defendant objects that the following portions of the Rebuttal Declaration of Clayton Cramer, May Dkt. No. 29-15—which purport to interpret (and frequently misinterpret) Bruen—constitute improper legal conclusions:

- Paragraph 28 in its entirety.
- Paragraph 30 in its entirety.
- Paragraph 32, with the exception of the first sentence.
- Paragraph 52’s second sentence.
- Paragraph 54’s testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the assertion about “Bruen’s rejection of interest-balancing.”
- Paragraph 77’s testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the assertion that certain evidence “is of no relevance to any case involving the standards set down by Bruen.”
- Paragraph 79’s testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the assertion that certain evidence “is of no relevance to any case involving the standards set down by Bruen.”
- Paragraph 81’s testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the assertion that certain evidence “is of no relevance to any case involving the standards set down by Bruen.”
- Paragraph 90’s testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the assertion about “the dates of importance to Bruen.”
- Paragraph 91’s testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the assertion about “the Bruen cutoff date.”
- Paragraph 98’s testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the assertion that certain evidence “is past the date Bruen considers relevant.”
- Paragraph 102’s testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the assertion that certain evidence “is too late for Bruen.”
- Paragraph 104 in its entirety.

- 1     ● Paragraph 109's testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the 2       assertion that certain evidence "ha[s] been rejected as irrelevant by Bruen."
- 3     ● Paragraph 110's testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the 4       assertion that certain evidence should be disregarded because it is an
5       "outlier" or "post-1868."
- 6     ● Paragraph 111's last sentence.
- 7     ● Paragraph 113 in its entirety.
- 8     ● Paragraph 129's testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the 9       assertion about "Bruen's rejection of [the] significance" of certain 10      evidence.
- 11    ● Paragraph 130 in its entirety.
- 12    ● Paragraph 137 in its entirety.
- 13    ● Paragraph 138's second and third sentences.
- 14    ● Paragraph 141 in its entirety.
- 15    ● Paragraph 149 in its entirety.
- 16    ● Paragraph 154's last sentence.
- 17    ● Paragraph 158's last sentence.
- 18    ● Paragraph 163 in its entirety.
- 19    ● Paragraph 165 in its entirety.
- 20    ● Paragraph 166 in its entirety.
- 21    ● Paragraph 173 in its entirety.
- 22    ● Paragraph 174's second sentence.
- 23    ● Paragraph 177 in its entirety.
- 24    ● Paragraph 178's second and third sentences.
- 25    ● Paragraph 179 in its entirety.
- 26    ● Paragraph 180's testimony purporting to interpret Bruen, in particular the 27       assertion that certain evidence should be disregarded because "Bruen
28       treated [it] as a special case" or because it is an "outlier[]."'

1           • Paragraph 182 in its entirety.

2           Because such testimony invades the province of the Court, see Diaz, 876 F.3d
3 at 1196-97, it should be disregarded and stricken from the record.

4           CONCLUSION

5           Defendant respectfully requests that this Court sustain the above objections to
6 the Rebuttal Declaration of Clayton Cramer and strike the challenged testimony
7 from the record.
